

Saying Power – Enabling Youth Led Projects

Last chance to get a FREE qualification!

Who is the programme for?

Organisations that are interested in and have the resources to support young people between the ages of 16 and 25 to undertake young person led projects.

Aim of the programme:

To equip participants with an understanding of the Saying Power approach to participation, accredit young people's learning and support young people to lead project work.

Information about the course:

Saying Power is based on a model of good practice developed for Participation Works by Save the Children UK. The flexible and structured programme offers seven OCN accredited modules; children's rights, participation and equal opportunities, project planning and project promotion, project worker role, group work and communication skills, monitoring and evaluation, advocacy and change, regeneration work, research skills and research practice. There are supporting workbooks and a support worker manual.

We are offering FREE training and registration with the Awarding Body, Open College network, for one module per learner.

Participation Works provides support to the organisation throughout the project and is responsible for assessing the portfolios of work.

What you will need to do

Ideally, the young people you work with are already engaged in voluntary projects producing work that can count as evidence towards their Saying Power qualification. All you need is to gather the evidence into a portfolio for submission and assessment. The good news is that a Participation Works representative is available to help you with this process.

If you are interested, you need to be quick as funding ends early next year. For details contact Nadya Nicola on 020 7833 6834 or nnicola@ncb.org.uk
